

New Discover process helps you guide your product concept from idea to production.

This month I want to talk to you about our Discover process and the new Discovery Center at K-Tube. K-Tube Discover combines quick-turn-around manufacturing with an on-site metallurgy lab and our new advisory team. This team can provide you with the support, information and options you need during the R&D phase of your medical device project.

Our team understands how to manipulate metallurgy to get your product to perform the way you want it to. They can also help you find the proper design so that you can quickly begin volume production. They work face to face with you to make sure your design and manufacturing needs get incorporated from the start. Most of you know Lori, our QA manager, but Jeff Crane has joined our team of engineers and quality control experts and is ready to help you guide your product concept from idea to production.

We've also built a Discovery Center on our manufacturing floor so that we can respond quickly with rapid prototyping. And we have millions of feet of tubing in stock so we can get you samples and small batches immediately. To get started, just send us an e-mail.
